Regular Site User Stories

As a site user, I want the main purpose of the site to be clear, so that I can determine if this the correct site for me.
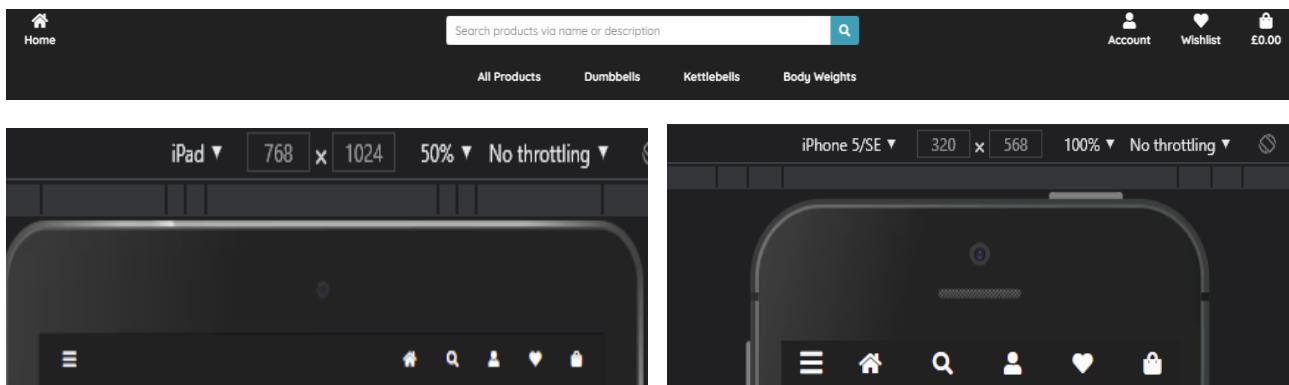

The home page has an introduction in the form of a paragraph that fades-in upon loading the page.

As a site user, I want to be able to navigate across the site, so that I can view different pages on the site.
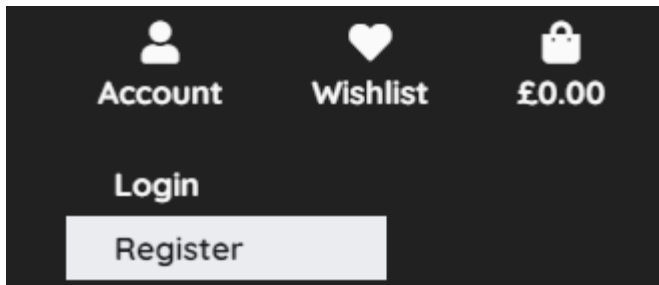

Every page across the site has the navigation bar fixed to the top of the page. This allows the user to freely navigate around the site. The navigation bar is fully responsive on large and small resolutions.

As a site user, I want to be able to sign up, so that I can have a personal account on the site.

Users can click on the Account icon in the nav bar to have a dropdown menu show a list of options available.

From the dropdown menu, users can select the Register option and be redirected to the Sign Up page.

User can sign up for an account filling in the details on thee form and pressing the Sign Up button.

As a site user, I want to be able to receive an email confirmation after registering, so that I can verify that my account registration was successful.

Upon filling out the details on the Sign-up page, the user is can press the Sign-Up button to start the process of creating a account.

After pressing the Sign-Up button, users are redirected to the email confirmation page. This page informs the user to expect an email with a confirmation link.
